Eight models in paper dresses (2012) by Tim Walker

British photographer Tim Walker created this image as a tribute to Cecil Beaton, whose 1948 portrait of a group of debutantes in Charles James couture gowns has become a classic of fashion photography. The original dresses were brightly coloured but Walker, ever the visionary, recreated the entire thing in paper. This image is being shown by Michael Hoppen Gallery at the PAD art fair, until tomorrow. pad-fairs.com
